WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Pasture Management

Pasture is a very important part of cattle production and yet in many cases we see pastures abused badly. Most of this abuse is in the form of overgrazing. Most pastures will handle 50 percent more animals if rotational grazing is practiced. This consists of dividing a pasture into two, three or four parts and moving the cattle from one to the next at regular intervals. (Never let the grass get eaten down too close and it will make much faster growth. Watering places can make it difficult to set up an arrangement like this but the increased carrying capacity makes it well worth while to go to some expense and effort. One acre of seeded pasture of grasses and legume is as good as four to six acres of native pasture so this is also worth considering.)

Soil Erosion

Nearly every farm in this area has some erosion. Some of it is very light and some is quite serious. Some of this erosion is caused by wind and some by water. Proper use of machinery can be a great help in preventing both types of erosion. Too much speed with machinery tends to pulverize the soil and leave it loose and subject to erosion so this should be avoided. Returning straw and stubble to the soil and using forage crops in the rotation are good measures to prevent erosion. Where there are gullies or gulches which tend to cut away it is a good plan to seed them down to grass. In some cases it will be necessary to fill a gully and smooth it out first so that it can still be crossed with machinery. A grass strip in a gully is no problem in farming a field and it can save a lot of damage and inconvenience.

Care of Lawns

The lawn is the main setting for the house and makes up the largest part of the grounds so it should be kept as nice as possible. The first cutting in the spring should not be done too early and the grass should not be cut too short. (This is true at all times where water is not available.) Clippings should be raked off the lawn after the first cutting in the spring but left on the lawn the rest of the time. A good application of Ammonium nitrate 33-5-0-0, Ammonium sulphate 21-0-0 or Ammonium phosphate 16-20-0 fertilizer in the spring will also help the lawn greatly.

Tree Planting

Will all those who wish to use the Municipal Tree Planter to plant their trees contact Ralph Congdon, Field Supervisor, at this office and give the following information: Name, address, phone number, land location and number of trees they are getting this spring.

Alberta's Natural Gas Industry: THE "GATE STATION"

After its long journey from the field to a population center, natural gas must pass one more inspection point — the City or Town "Gate Station." Here gas from one or many production fields is measured, checked and controlled for quality. Temperatures are checked and pressures regulated. Here, too, the gas dispatcher watches over his pipeline system. From the City or Town "Gate Station" flows natural gas of uniform quality — in the right amounts, at the right pressure — to meet the needs of every area receiving natural gas service.

With GAS you get service — we plan it that way!

(Sponsored by an Irma Times reader)

Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord.

Blessed are they that keep His testimonies, and that seek Him with the whole heart.

They also do no iniquity: they walk in His ways.

Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently.

O that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes!

Then shall I not be ashamed when I have respect unto all thy commandments.

I will praise thee with uprightness of heart, when I have learned thy righteous judgments.

I will keep thy statutes: O forsake me not utterly.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY —

lazy boy

—By I. DE LA TORRE

HIS sneakers raising puffs of dust, Billy raced down the path to the lake. Now he stopped, matched an overhanging branch and clung to it, gasping for breath. After a backward glance satisfied him that the little white schoolhouse no longer showed through the trees, he jerked up his black trousers and shuffled on.

"School!" he mumbled to himself. "I'm sick of it! And if Ma put on any more crying acts when I talk about quitting, it just ain't going to do her any good. I could fake my age and join the Navy to see the Nahl! I'll just drift around, free like a kite."

Now that his future was so promptly settled, Billy looked around for something to attract his immediate interest. A thin column of smoke rising from the clearing caught his eye.

"Punny time for anybody to have a fire on the beach," he told himself and dashed across. The two men crouching over the fire turned around as Billy approached. Both wore shabby clothes, and their faces looked as if untouched by water or razor for weeks.

"You — you tramp?" Billy blurted.

The two men looked at each other and the one sitting on an overturned log can answered.

"Yeah, we're bums. What you doin' here? Ain't yuh supposed tuh be in school?"

"Sure, just taking a vacation today," and Billy grinned, pleased with his wit.

The big man who had just spoken picked up a twig, snapped it, threw it on the fire.

"Hey, Joe," he grunted to his companion, "what yuh say duh kid joins up wid us?" He put his hand on the boy's shoulder.

"You mean go around tramping with you?" Billy broke in.

"Yuh know how tuh ride rails, kid?" Joe inquired.

"Sure—sure I do. Billy wasn't as certain as he sounded, but from what he had seen of "riding the rods" in the movies it looked easy enough.

The first tramp picked up a rusty can and with the aid of a stick propped it in the centre of the crackling twigs. He was still poking it into position as he drawled out, "Hey, Joe, Member Horsey Sinder? Jus' heard other day he lost his leg ridin' onnah Santa Fe. Truckman followed up his blood fer ten miles."

"Awh, that guy couldn't hold on tuh a kiddy can 'out' fallen off. Yeah, got woid Beardy Oaler got it too las' week. Head crushed 'tween couplers like I was ch squashed egg." Here Joe paused and pointed to Billy's feet.

"Mike, wouldstah ast dah kid tuh gimme his shoes? Mine's ain't got 'nuf sole on 'em tuh grind up fer chevin' tobacco."

"Mine?" Billy cried. He held one foot forward for them to see. "These are my only school shoes and I—"

"Yeah—yours," Mike started. "Yuh ain't gotin' tuh school no more, is yuh?" He snarled to stand up but Joe motioned him down. "Awh, lettem have 'em. He'll wearin' noompapers 'round his feet soon 'ut. We got 'nother forty below winter of las' year an' no doubt dah remains of muh toot'll get frozen off. Hah, mebbe muh feet'll be little 'nuf tuh wrap intuh dah tabloids," he finished, chuckling to himself.

Billy, kneeling beside the fire, watched the dying flames and fidgeted with the buckle on his belt.

"Yuh scatchin' agin?" Mike grunted at his companion.

"Can't help it, Mike. Jus' thinkin' 'bout dat flop jern't last n'ght. Jeez! Dos bedbugs crawlin' over me innah dark was so big I figured mebbe dey was turtles."

Mike grinned broadly and picked up his stick to poke the can. "Chow's on!" he called to Joe.

Billy leaned over and peered into the can. "What—what is it?" he stammered.

"Stewed pig tails," Mike drawled. "Ain't often we got such luck as tuh get such good eat'n as that, do we Joe?"

"Yeah, member dat time we couldn't get nuttin' but fish heads otta dah garbage palat? Musta been time wasn't much meat 'round."

"Here, kid," Mike was proudly holding up the can. "New member folt. Gobble it down when it's still good'n hot, boy."

"No—no thanks. I—I—" Billy's lips clenched together and his hand went instinctively over his mouth. He shook his head and fled.

Mike dropped the can, threw back his head and laughed until he sank to the ground exhausted. His companion wiped a laugh-tear away.

"What did you do, Mike?" he panted. "Brood our worms?"

Mike nodded. "The fishing was getting terrible, anyway." He rose wearily off the ground. "Come on, let's look for the canoe and start home. And please remember, dear brother, that it's your turn to take mother to a fish dinner at the Seafood Grotto."

Why exercise?

BY S. F. CALDWELL

Physical Director, Regina Y.M.C.A., Regina, Saskatchewan
Research data recently published in terms of personal in the United States and Canada health, strength and vitality can't be overstressed. Few people realize that sedentary living brings about a gradual shrinking of the heart muscle, lungs, and in the heart muscle, lungs, and in the muscles. It should also be noted that headaches and insomnia go hand in hand with the physically untrained state.

Recent data from Dr. Hans Kraus has shown that by giving exercise to people with lower back pains the result for most of these persons was the elimination of the painful affliction. While the improvement may be attributed primarily to increasing strength in the pelvic area, promotion of circulation in the lumbar and sacral area was tremendously important.

Exercise leads to greater strength, agility, balance, endurance and flexibility. The types of activity an individual may engage in to receive an adequate amount of exercise are walking, hiking, skiing, skating, hockey, swimming, track and field, wrestling, gymnastics, weight training, calisthenics and numerous others.

Games also play an important role in the physical development of the individual, but they are only a part of the physical training picture. Most games exercise and develop the muscles of the thighs and legs and entirely miss the arms, shoulders, chest and back muscles.

A varied exercise program, involving the large muscles of the lower and upper body will not only enhance the appearance of the individual but also the physical efficiency so he may better serve himself and others.

Make retirement a new career
Many busy active people find that after retirement they cannot stand the monotony of idleness. Once the lifetime job is ended, there should be a substitute to occupy hands and mind. For at least ten years before retirement, a lot of time should be spent in choosing and experimenting with various hobbies and sparetime occupations, to be commercially profitable or not, according to the need for money to help to eke out the pension. There are many volumes available in most public libraries in which various hobbies are described, and most people will find several of interest for their later "career."

GARDEN NOTES—

Frequent change of residence no obstacle to good garden

Even people who have just moved into a brand new house can have a good garden and have it this season too. Even those who rent and move every few years can also have an excellent showing. In these cases, of course, we rely on annual flowers rather than perennials which must get established. And, it is amazing what can be done with annuals exclusively. We can get vines that will cover a porch in a matter of weeks, things like scarlet runner beans, the modern and vastly improved morning glories. Or we can use window boxes filled with trailing nasturtiums, and semi-trailing pelanias, marigolds and zinnias.

For big screens to act as hedges there are all sorts of rapid growing bushy annuals like cosmos, african marigolds, spider plants, larkspur, hibiscus, malope and others that are listed in any Canadian seed catalogue. These quick growers reach two to four feet and will take the place of scrubbery and give privacy as well as abundance of bloom. As for the regular beds, there are hundreds of annuals from which to choose.

Where we have just moved in we can combine special annuals with the permanent perennials which will eventually take their place. In amongst the tiny new shrubs, climbers, and trees, we plant liberally with big annuals and we continue to do this for the first few years until the permanent stuff has got established and requires the full room.

Can't buy this quality
We all know the old argument about it being cheaper to buy vegetables than for the urban man to grow them. That is all very well but it overlooks an important point. No matter how handy the store and how fast the transportation, it just isn't possible to buy the sort of freshness that comes only with vegetables grown in one's own garden. A little plot where we have a few feet of lettuce, onions, radish, carrots and perhaps a row of beans, tomatoes, or corn, will repay itself many times over just in freshness alone.

Not a great deal of room will be necessary. To make it go further there are various ways of growing two crops, or practically so, on the same piece of land. Of course in this intensive sort of vegetable gardening, extra fertilizer is essential and the soil must be well worked and rich in double cropping, we alternate rows of an early kind with a later one, for instance radish and carrots, or lettuce and beans, or peas and corn. We also have less space than normal between the rows, if necessary no more than 12 or 15 inches.

The early stuff, of course, comes on quickly and is used up before the later maturing vegetables require full bloom. Another practice is to follow the harvesting of the first vegetables like the peas, lettuce, spinach, radish, early onions, etc., with another sowing of the same or something else that will be ready say in August or September. Then there are certain crops like squash and pumpkins, that we can plant in the outside rows and we can have staked tomatoes along the end of any vegetable row and cucumbers along the fence.

Almost every one is inclined to plant far too deeply. With tiny seed such as that of lettuce, carrots, cosmos, zinnias, poppies, and alyssum, which are not much larger than the head of a pin or shingle nail, it is not necessary to cover at all. We sow these in the finest soil and merely press in. Then, if possible, we keep the soil dampened until germination starts.

With larger seeds such as nasturtiums, peas, beans and corn, one should cover lightly, say a quarter to half inch. With bulbs or corms of gladioli, dahlias, or potatoes, one plants four to eight inches deep.

Explain 'pink' in chickens
That pink color appearing in well-bred roosters and chickens is questioned by housewives as the result of the same chemical reaction that causes redness in ham and other cured meats, scientists have discovered.

Any roasting flame, the researchers point out, produces minute amounts of gases which react with hemoglobin remaining in the flesh of even well-bred birds to leave the tinge.

The age of the bird, amount of fat under its skin, heat of the flame and method of roasting determine how much of the flesh turns pink and how deep the color goes, the specialists added.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT
PENTECOST MARKS BIRTH OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The birth of the Christian church is usually dated from the Day of Pentecost.

Hitherto, Christianity had its growth in the fellowship of the Teacher and His disciples moving about from place to place. But now, with their Master ascended, the disciples became organized into a more definite fellowship.

Originally, Pentecost was a festival held 50 days after the Passover. A Jewish festival, it became a symbol in the Christian church of the outpouring of spiritual power. We speak today of a "Pentecost of grace," a "Pentecost of blessing," a "Pentecost of power."

What did it mean to receive the Holy Spirit? What do we mean by the Holy Spirit? There have been various forms of definition and interpretation, even among those who have accepted the belief in three persons in the Godhead—Father, Son and Holy Spirit. Some have thought of them as three manifestations of the one God.

It is obvious that in considering the Trinity we are in a realm of mystery, where definitions and explanations are exceedingly difficult and where any one man's human conception may fall far short of reality.

Perhaps we may say that the Holy Spirit represented to the disciples the same Presence that Jesus had represented when He was among them.

The baptism of the Holy Spirit is the baptism of God—the power of God manifest in the hearts and lives of men.
